Collective Commitments

Listed below are the commitments that we make to our students, parents, all within our faculty and staff, and the community at large. Embedded within these commitments are Daniel Webster School’s shared vision statements.

1. If we are a school that recognizes and utilizes the strengths of our staff to create a collaborative culture that enhances pedagogy, then we must be willing to share, allow and encourage an exchange of knowledge through formal and informal dialogue.

2. If we are a school that regularly analyzes data to determine next steps for instruction in order to improve student learning, then we must consistently assess each student’s learning on a timely basis using short-term, medium-term and long-term data.

3. If we are a school that will continuously clarify the skills and concepts that students must learn across all grade levels, then we will develop in-depth knowledge of the Common Core State Standards.

4. If we are a school dedicated to exploring ways to meet the needs of all learners, then we will differentiate instruction to ensure students receive additional time, support and enrichment.

5. If we are a school that recognizes and values the importance and uniqueness of the individual student, then we will celebrate their efforts, improvements, and achievements.

6. If our mission is to educate the whole child, then we will provide opportunities to explore cultural, intellectual, social, emotional, artistic, creative and kinesthetic interests.

7. If we are a school that believes the values embedded within the W.E.B.S.T.E.R. Way will be lived on a daily basis, then we will model, teach, and acknowledge specific examples of each attribute.

8. If we are a school that nurtures the school family and community partnership, then we will encourage open lines of communication through various means.

9. If we believe school leaders are accountable for ensuring all the above happens, then they will assess progress, provide shared leadership opportunities, protect and promote the shared vision.
